

SESYNC

SPRING 2019 SEMINAR SERIES

1 PARK PLACE SUITE 300, ANNAPOLIS, MD

Seminars begin at 11 a.m. and are free and open to the public.

Jan 29	Brian McGill Adventures in SES-land	Professor of Biology University of Maine
Feb 5	Patrick Meyfroidt Middle-range theories of land systems change	Professor of Land Sciences Université catholique de Louvain
Feb 12	Stephanie Crabtree Using the Archaeological Past to Examine the Sustainability of Human-Environment Interactions	Postdoctoral Fellow Washington State University
Feb 19	Nalini Nadkarni From Ivory Tower to Prison Tower	Professor of Biology University of Utah
Feb 26	Valerie Mueller Coastal Climate Change and Demographic Transformation in Bangladesh	Assist. Professor Politics and Global Studies Arizona State University
Mar 12	Vanessa Ezenwa Helminth-microbe co-infection: Insights from a natural system	Assist. Professor of Ecology University of Georgia
Mar 26	Nandita Basu TBD	Assoc. Professor of Water Sustainability and Ecohydrology University of Waterloo
Apr 2	Paige Warren The domestication of biodiversity in the city	Assoc. Professor of Environmental Conservation University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Apr 9	Christopher Golden The Impact of Global Fisheries Decline on Human Nutrition	Assist. Professor of Nutrition and Planetary Health Harvard University
Apr 16	Mini-Symposia 10-12:30	1st-year Postdocs SESYNC
Apr 23	TDB
Apr 30	Mini-Symposia 10-12:30	1st-year Postdocs SESYNC
May 7	Javier Arce-Nazario Reading resilience in the Puerto Rican landscape	Assoc. Professor of Geography University of North Carolina
May 14	Steward Pickett Dynamic Urban Heterogeneity and the Co-production of Human Ecosystems	Plant Ecologist Cary Institute of Ecosystem Studies
May 21	Matthew Huber Rethinking Climate Change and Inequality: From Carbon Footprints to Class Power	Assoc. Professor of Geography Clark University

For more information, visit www.sesync.org or call 410.919.4810

